More than 35,000 grandparents and other relatives in Washington State are raising children often with little support or knowledge of resources.

To better help meet the parenting needs of kinship care families the dynamic training and curriculum developed by Cornell University Cooperative Extension will be presented during a two-day workshop.

This training may be for you if you are a:

- ◆ Support Group Leader.
- ◆ Parenting Educator.
- ◆ School personnel.
- ◆ Tribal or other family support person.
- ◆ Relative raising a child.

After the Training

Attendees are asked to present two workshops on one or more of the curriculum topics in their local communities over the next year.
